SCHOOL TEACHERS HERE. Educational Pilgrims From the Far Northwest.

Far Northwest.

Sunday there registered at the Lexington Hotel lifteen members of the yeardion excursion party of Detroit school teachers. Their only important stop since leaving Detroit Saturday was at Charlottesville, when the delegation visited Monticello and the University of Virginia. In spite of the inciement weather which met them here, they took in all the points of interest about Richmond, visiting the public buildings, churches, cemeterles and riding over the main thoroughfares. The party was unmindful of the heavy snowfall, saying that they were used to it up in Detroit. They were charmed with the attractions of Richmond and were serry that they had to leave so soon for Norfolk.

They left yesterday morning at 7 o'clock on the steamer Pocahontas After a day in Norfolk they will visit. Old Point Comfort, Fortress Monroe, the shippard and other points of interest. The party will return to Norfolk Thursday, where they will leave for a three days'

SPRING RECEPTION. The spring reception to the students are faculty and literary clubs of outhern Female College Friday nighthern special charm with literary one of the brightest features of the college year.

The first attraction was, as is often the case in such situations, "The Worsted Man;" which, in this instance, was a sparking little musical play in two acts, by John Kendrick Bangs; and was excellently presented by a student cast, composed of the following young lades:

Miss Susie Zollieoffer, Miss Mary Cassard, Miss Jacqueline Woolard, Miss Helen Burr, Miss Alde Burgos, Miss Nellie Chapman, Miss Adrian Drewry, Miss Mildred Cruzan, Miss Edna McCue, and Miss Mary Robertson.

and the interest centered in them, disease vorite surgeon whose prowess they de-light in exploiting, while discussing in minutest detail surgical operations which twenty years ago were not dreamed of, or if dreamed of were dismissed as im-possible, but which the veriest tyros in surgery are now doing, and in many cases with such success. To the layman little is known of the laboratory workers whose studies in the causation of disease and the means of its prevention, while devoid of the spectacular, have made pos-sible these marvelous surficed feats.

In considering the results of the dissible these marvelous surgical feats. In considering the results of the discoveries of these laboratory workers as it relates to surgery, the impression is apt to be formed that the benefits of their findings, are confined to the surgeons and the small percentage of the population which has to seek surgical treatment. No greater mistake could be made, as every one, so long as he lives is constantly reaping the benefits of these discoveries. This will be more clearly understood when it is realized that the adoption of their recommendations, by a community, is always followed by a reduction in the death rate and a resulting increase in the average length of life, while many of the contagious diseases are robbed of their tecrors and others entirely banished. Among these workers no one occupies a higher position than Professor W. T. Sedgewick, chief of the Department of Sanitary Science in the Mussachusetts institute of Technology, who is to deliver an illustrated lecture in the Academy of Music on Friday night.

Professor Sedgewick comes here at the instance of the special committee of the city council which is investigating the Health Department of the city. After spending two days in conference with this committee acquainting himself with the actual conditions as they exist, an will make his recommendations, after which he has consented to address the public. It is more than probable that he will tell his audience of what ought to be done and what can be expected from a well equipped health department, unhampered by lack of funds, working along modern ideas.

He is one of the most forceful and entertaining lecturers in the scientific world and realizes fully the part played by carefully selected stereopticon views in increasing the interest in scientific sectures.

No doubt he will tell of some of the experiments of the students of preventifrom Havana and thereby make it possible for people to live in the South without the ever-recurring fear of yellow fover and its business destroying companion, quarantine. And he will not let the public lose sight of the fact that the benefits resulting from the discovery of the means of preventing yellow fever and its allied diseases is not confined to freeling Hayana, and the South of yellow fever, as he will doubtless remind them that it has made possible the building of the Panama Canal by the United States government. As the failure of the French to build the canal was as largely due to the high mortality rate on a large scale, thus adding to the many monuments mult by the workers in preventitive medicine.

NEGRO GETS DRUNK.

And Begins to Raise a Rough House on Third Street.

John Moss, a negro working at the home of Dr. Uriah Harman, 14 North Third Street, got gloriously drunk yesterday morning and anticipating the near approach of Emancipation Day, he began to celebrate by hurling a few big cobble stones at the front of his employer's house. Dr. Harman, who was busy with a ployer's house.

Dr. Harman, who was busy with a patient at the time, was told of the map's cyll deeds, and armed with a large claw-hammer, he salled forth to a hand-to-hand combat.

In the sculle which ensued, the hammer fell to the ground and the negro soon followed it in its downward course, still grappling the doctor, however. The latter, seeing the necessity for action, and quick action, gave the man a taste of his fist full in the face and blood spurted from nose and mouth profusely. Dr. William H. Parker, who happened to be near, gave the man a hypodermic injection and ordered the ambulance to be called for. Dr. Turman, who responded, declared the man more fit for the patrol, and so the patrol was sent for. Moss was taken to the Third Station on a warrant sworn out by Dr. Harman.

A counter warrant was served against the doctor, and both will appear in the Polica Court this morning to answer the charges against them.
